Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-63 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the applicant admitted prior art (AAPA) in view of Greenwood et al (6,598,200).

As per claims 1-11 and 58-62, the AAPA discloses a method, comprising the steps of:

receiving a digital information comprising data and at least one non-data portion (header), the data comprising a plurality of data portions having a fixed length; removing the at least one non-data portion. (Paragraphs (0004)-(0005)). The AAPA does not disclose if the data does not include a remainder having a length less than the fixed length, then checking the plurality of data portions for a transmission error, but if the data includes the remainder, then adding a zero-pad vector to the remainder to generate a zero-padded data portion having the fixed length, and checking the plurality of data portions and the zero-padded data portion for a transmission error. However, Greenwood et al disclose if the data does not include a remainder having a length less than the fixed length, then checking the plurality of data portions for a transmission error, but if the data includes the remainder, then adding a zero-pad vector to the remainder to generate a zero-padded data portion having the fixed length, and checking the plurality of data portions and the zero-padded data portion for a transmission error. (Col. 6, lines 20-53, col. 9, lines 5-58 and col. 12, lines 1-11). Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to set if the data does not include a remainder having a length less than the fixed length, then checking the plurality of data portions for a transmission error, but if the data includes the remainder, then adding a zero-pad vector to the remainder to generate a zero-padded data portion having the fixed length and checking the plurality of data portions and the zero-padded data portion for a transmission error as taught by Greenwood et al into the invention of the AAPA to maximize the data transmission rate under all channel conditions without reducing error correction capability.

As per claim 12, the AAPA further discloses wherein the checking step comprises calculating cyclic redundancy code (CRC) on all of the data portions and the zero padded data portion.

As per claims 13-19, 21-30, 32-42, 44-52 and 54-57, these claims are rejected under similar rationale as set forth in claims 1-11 and 58-62.

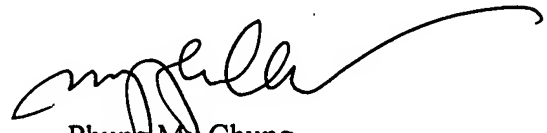

As per claims 20, 31, 43, 53 and 63, these claims are rejected under similar rationale as set forth in claim 12.
